Ogle School Announces Acquisition by NCK Capital

(DALLAS) January 8, 2015 – Ogle School, an industry leader in cosmetology and esthetics education, today announced the company's acquisition by NCK Capital, a Dallas-based private equity firm specializing in management buyouts, divestitures and recapitalizations of family-owned businesses.

"We are excited to bring the ownership of Ogle School back to Texas. Ogle is a 40-year-old institution that has been a pillar of our local community, boasting superior graduation and job placement outcomes. Further, its leaders are true models for for-profit education," said Grant Kornman, NCK Capital's managing partner. "We look to invest in companies with strong leadership, exemplary values and outcomes, and local roots. The acquisition was a natural choice for us."

The partnership, which was made official in December 2014, will bring NCK Capital's expertise to Ogle School and shepherd the school into its next era.

"We care deeply about our students, and empowering them for rewarding careers is at the heart of our mission. A return to local ownership and the solid backing of NCK Capital will help us continue Ogle School's great tradition, helping students achieve their career goals in the beauty industry," said John Blair, Ogle School's president and CEO.
